a

```
library(tidyverse)
```

```
— Attaching core tidyverse packages —
                                                        ----- tidyverse 2.0.0 - 1.1.2
✓ dplyr
                         ✓ readr
                                      2.1.4
✓ forcats 1.0.0
                      ✓ stringr 1.5.0
✓ ggplot2 3.4.2 ✓ tibble
                                     3.2.1
✔ lubridate 1.9.2
                      🗸 tidyr
                                   1.3.0
✔ purrr
               1.0.1
— Conflicts ——
                                                    ----- tidyverse_conflicts() -- ## * dplyr::filter() masks stats::filter()
* dplyr::lag() masks stats::lag()
i Use the conflicted package (http://conflicted.r-lib.org/) to force all conflicts to become errors
```

```
# A tibble: 10 × 4
     country year cases population
     <chr>
            <int> <int>
                            <int>
1 Nepal
             2014 249
                           457623
2 india
             2007 286
                           780391
3 india
             2011 120
                           849520
4 india
             2018 487
                           776301
5 Nepal
             2019 494
                           350104
6 india
             2007 457
                           294412
7 Nepal
             2017 381
                           409335
8 Nepal
             2014 314
                           665428
9 india
             2005
                  485
                           453031
10 Nepal
             2015 199
                           898702
```

b

```
df_long <- df %>% pivot_longer(cols = c("cases", "population"), names_to = "variable", values_to = "value") df_long
```

```
# A tibble: 20 × 4
      country year variable value <chr>
             <int> <chr>
                                <int>
                                  249
  1 Nepal
              2014 cases
   2 Nepal
              2014 population 457623
   3 india
               2007 cases
                                  286
   4 india
               2007 population 780391
   5 india
               2011 cases
                                 120
   6 india
               2011 population 849520
7 india
               2018 cases
                                  487
  8 india
               2018 population 776301
9 Nepal
               2019 cases
                                  494
               2019 population 350104
10 Nepal
11 india
               2007 cases
                                  457
12 india
               2007 population 294412
13 Nepal
               2017 cases
                                  381
               2017 population 409335
14 Nepal
15 Nepal
               2014 cases
                                  314
16 Nepal
               2014 population 665428
17 india
               2005 cases
                                  485
18 india
               2005 population 453031
               2015 cases
19 Nepal
                                  199
20 Nepal
               2015 population 898702
```

#The long format has two columns - "variable" and "value". The "variable" column contains the variable names "cas es" and "population", and the "value" column contains the corresponding values for each observation. It allows us to easily filter, group, and plot the data based on the variable of interest.

C

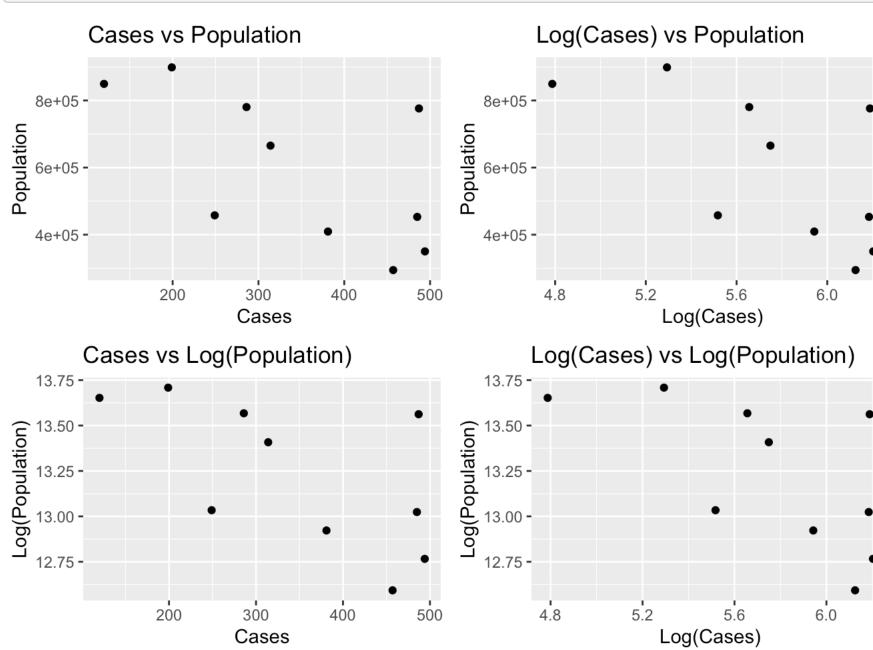

```
df_log <- df %>% mutate(log_cases = log(cases), log_population = log(population)) df_log
```

```
# A tibble: 10 × 6
     country year cases population log cases log population
##
##
      <chr>
             <int> <int>
                                                       <dbl>
                              <int>
                                        <dbl>
##
              2014 249
                             457623
                                         5.52
                                                       13.0
  1 Nepal
  2 india
              2007 286
                             780391
                                         5.66
                                                       13.6
   3 india
              2011 120
                             849520
                                         4.79
                                                       13.7
  4 india
              2018 487
                             776301
                                         6.19
                                                       13.6
5 Nepal
              2019 494
                             350104
                                         6.20
                                                       12.8
6 india
              2007
                     457 294412
                                         6.12
                                                        12.6
7 Nepal
              2017
                     381
                                         5.94
                                                        12.9
  8 Nepal
                             665428
              2014
                     314
                                         5.75
                                                        13.4
9 india
              2005
                     485
                             453031
                                         6.18
                                                        13.0
10 Nepal
              2015
                   199 898702
                                         5.29
                                                        13.7
```

#The above code will create two new columns in the tibble that contain the log of cases and the log of population , respectively. We can interpret this transformation to be useful when the original variable has a wide range of values.

d

```
df_scatter <- df %>% mutate(log_cases = log(cases), log_population = log(population)) p1 <- ggplot(df_scatter, aes(x = cases, y = population)) +</pre> geom_point() +
 labs(x = "Cases", y = "Population") + ggtitle("Cases vs Population")
p2 <- ggplot(df scatter, aes(x = log cases, y = population)) +
 geom_point() +
 labs(x = "Log(Cases)", y = "Population") + ggtitle("Log(Cases) vs Population") p3 <- ggplot(df_scatter, aes(x = cases, y = log_population)) + labs(x = "Cases", y = "Log(Population)") + ggtitle("Cases vs Log(Population)") p4 <- ggplot(df_scatter, aes(x = log_cases, y = log_population)) +
 geom point() +
 labs(x = "Log(Cases)", y = "Log(Population)") +
 ggtitle("Log(Cases) vs Log(Population)")
gridExtra::grid.arrange(p1, p2, p3, p4, ncol = 2)
```

#The first plot shows the relationship between cases and population, the second plot shows the relationship between the log of cases and population, the third plot shows the relationship between cases and the log of population, and the fourth plot shows the relationship